

How to Track & Find your Work

(this is the Wonder Woman cart)

1. When your piece is ready to be fired, find the appropriate cart (i.e. greenware, reduction glaze etc.) and put your piece on a shelf. Every cart is labelled with an alphabet letter, a super hero, or Mario brothers character. Record the date, the cart you put it on, and what the piece looks like in your notebook. In Two weeks, you should start looking for your piece(s) on the long carts.

2. When a warecart is full, the tech staff will bring the cart to the cart corral where it waits to get fired. Mudflat fires everything on a first come, first served basis and tracks the date that all the carts go to the corral.

3. After about 2 weeks, when you start looking for your piece(s), take a look at the date written on the side of the long carts to see which cart your piece(s) might be on. The date written is the date it gets unloaded. Refer to your notes to see what piece(s) you are looking for. Please note that some pieces will get stacked so your piece could be sitting in another piece.

4. If you are looking for very small pieces, look out for the Tupperware containers. This is where most small pieces will be.

5. Can't find your pieces? Be sure to look on the white shelving unit by the cart corral on the 1st floor. This is where pieces will go if they could not be fired. Each piece will have a note as to why it could not be fired, and if you can fix it.

6. Remember that Mudflat keeps pieces for 2 months and then discards them. Typically, the oldest pieces are in the front of the building, on the first floor, in front of the red wall. This is always a good place to look for pots you might have forgotten about.

If you are having trouble finding pieces, please ask your teacher or a member of the tech staff
